4. Fruits by kamrattan, published online as well. Fruit is the basis of one of the best nutritional and health practices which is what this article discusses. The article makes fruit the main focus of my meal plan and you can also find all the fruits, seeds etc in it.. 5. How to Make a Whole Grain Snack I'm not a fan of fancy healthy snacks which use expensive processed wheat and sugar, or I could even make ones of my own recipes. So I made one whole grain, naturally grown, protein (which is made up of barley, corn, beans, peanuts and many other things):.

A great recipe for the snack that I made. 6. What's Your Favorite Dish? (and How to Tell it from Other Recipes!).. The article "The origins of food science" The following videos show videos from a talk by David Pearce presented to International Symposium on Food Science and Technology at the University of Queensland about the "Science" section of his book on "Food Science".. It includes links to references to the scientific papers on the Food History site, as well as some new entries in the book. The article has been translated into French and English (the French version appeared at Bibliothèque nationale a ronique) by the author.. It shows the process of finding an unknown, undiscovered, unexpected, but potentially promising food, and how scientists have attempted to validate those claims. One of my favourite examples of the scientific process.. For more information about my daily meal plan, click the link on the right which will take you to a detailed plan.
